GEO - GEOGRACE RES. PHIL., INC.

Posted by voiyong - 2007/01/10 19:03

Hi guys...as you can see...the breakout of GEO price was cause by an Descending Triangle that could either break out or break down. But obviously...it's a breakout towards the upside with volume. My target is 0.84 here but there could be a stong to moderate resistance at 0.81 level that remain to be tested. Both RSI and MACD are geared to move upward. The GEO open interest and OBV could help us determin if money is actually flowing in GEO to push it upwards...or would the profit takers assume the momentum of GEO :) Let us see what happens next :)

Disclosure nga pala...wala me GEO...just love to study price movement

Base on the 0.77 price...the risk reward here would be 1:1 already...assuming 0.7 is the support of GEO with target of 0.84....the risk reward would already be 1:1...0.07:0.07...0.07upside is to 0.07downside or 9%reward to 9% risk

Oooops...i stand corrected...descending triangle nga pala...as mentioned in my previous watch list...its actually a descending tri...sorry :)

Althou a descending tri is suppose to be a bearish conslidation...it reamains to be a continuation pattern...meaning...based from the previous trend...w/c is uptrend...the descending tri of GEO should remain bullish as evident to the upside breakout of the triangle. :)

But I still do not recommend anyone to take new position with GEO at 0.77 price. The Reward doesnt out weight the Risk :)

GEO again tested resistance at 0.88... but failure to close at its high or above the resistance might signal the failure of the bulls and start of bearishness once again... hope someone got to ride GEO from the low of 0.67 up til the resistance or the high of 0.88 :)

Re: GEO - GEOGRACE RES. PHIL., INC.

exdate- you have to have the geo share on that day for you to be able to participate in stock rights (you can sell your geo shares on the exdate and still be entitled) record date - is the day when they actually record it on their books (don't pay much attention to record date)

correct me if am wrong :)

Re: GEO - GEOGRACE RES. PHIL., INC.

record date is 3 trading days after ex-date. No you cannot sell your shares on ex-date and still be entitled to stock rights ... you can only sell it after the ex-date.

I C a Triangle

Posted by bigmonkey - 2007/04/16 10:04

In my opinion, I see an ascending triangle. if this is correct, there is really a substantial upside potential which we could pick up at breakout. I noticed also that its near overbought levels (RSI) and it historically is succeeded with a big upward push.

On the other hand, could this also be a "bearish divergence"( did i get this right or is it the other one?), looking at the RSI and MACD being lower in this high?

Is this stock still worth going into?

hehe danny, ilang phases ba nasabi nila? 3? i know that this stock might not have anything to do for technicals... as mentioned before.

somebody told me lalaruin ito hanggang 2.32!
before its ascent again and surpass the minimum target price of P3. next target after P3.00 is P5.90, baka bukas touchdown na sa 2.32 ito but probably close its price near to its high. Yan ay according to my GF analysis (not TA)

After flirting with the resistance at 1.7 for GEO... it finally managed to breakout of it... and what a "breakout" it was... there was a huge supply at 1.8 near the close of the trading day but it was gobbled up by the demand... could this be the return of the bulls for GEO?... (personally, i certainly hope so...)

But as you can see from the graph with a fibonacci retracement drawn over the movement from the high of GEO at 3.1 to the recent low of 1.02 that 1.8 is near the 38.2 retracement for the downward direction of GEO... it might be a reminder that we have to be prudent and maintain out stops/cut loss...

but... if we were playing the oops for GEO... buying on the gap up with volume and closing at its high... we "might" see a good return for our risk... (hopefully)...

(and if psei will track the gains of the us markets last friday... we "might" have less risk for seeing out returns for GEO come monday...)

Good luck to all GEO traders :)

I'd like to disagree. The so-called breakout lacked volume. What GEO seems to be forming now is a rising wedge.

I could be wrong.

I beg to disagree about the rising wedge Mastah B... Volume did not confirm the pattern.

whoah! Nice debate! But I think that it is still worth the risk during the break of resistance. Volume is picking up. Price is king. It is paramount to everything else including analyses. :-) To be bookish, always remember that a rising wedge is only a rising wedge when a breakdown has ocured from it. Just as all area patterns are only confirmed to be what it is during breakouts and breakdowns. It may look like a wedge, feel like a wedge, and even taste like a wedge but one can never be certain till it has been confirmed. The danger of form fitting is that one's emotion is also form fitted into that pattern.

Mabuhay kayo for these technical debates! Just make sure to allow objectivity to reign in the end para kuita tayo lahat ng PERA!

I finally figured it out. To post a chart, pls follow the following procedure. In the Amibroker, pls call on the chart that you want to attach. Then go to edit>image>copy as bitmap and paste in a photoshop new (blank) file. You may save it in a file folder, e.g., my documents or desktop, as JPEG format to reduce its resolution . When you are in the AT forum, you may now browse for the saved file and click on add attachment. Preview the document to make sure that your attachment was accepted.

I observed the same pattern as you did. The volumes at the bottom and handle of the cup seem to agree. The MACD and RSI which currently project a downtrend could possibly reverse, I hope, as the price tries to test the resistance level and eventually succeed in breaking out. My projection however, has a much higher TP, which makes me wonder if my analysis is correct. Only time will tell. Here it goes.
